

EXCHANGE MECHANISM

Curated by Raimi Gbadamosi

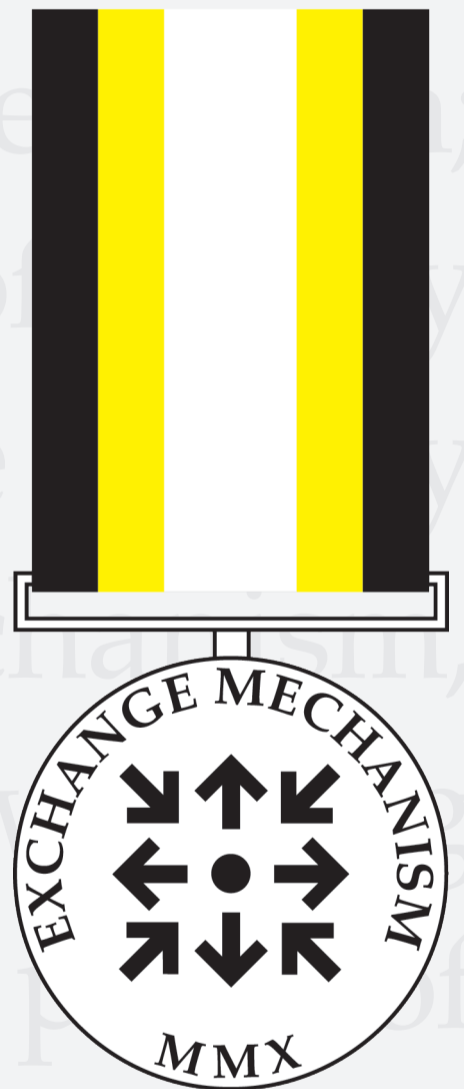

February 11 - April 09 2010

Increasing regulation of public space, restrictions on travel, routine invasions of personal privacy - these are the starting points for an interrogation of the demands and denials of freedom alongside artists' responsibility to actively engage with the political. Simultaneously functioning as a debating chamber, an installation of esoteric and popular media and an archive display, Exchange Mechanism seeks to challenge the absence of spontaneous political encounters from everyday life.

Over eight weeks, Belfast Exposed will operate as an alternative political space, opening up a platform for discussion, debate, campaigns, presentations, talks, speeches, performance and all forms of public engagement. If you want to take the platform as an activist, organizer or speaker send an expression of interest, setting out your ideas, alongside a short description of how your proposal relates to the Exchange Mechanism themes.
